

Tia McIntosh

FranklinCovey Coaching Director

SPEAKING TOPICS

4 Disciplines of Execution®
4 Essential Roles of Leadership®
Academic Improvement
Culture of Belonging
Leader in Me
Leadership
School Culture
Staff Development
Unconscious Bias™
... And More!

CERTIFICATIONS

7 Habits of Highly Effective People®
7 Habits of Highly Effective Families
4 Essential Roles of Leadership
Unconscious Bias
... And More!

DEGREES

M.A. Public Administration
Rutgers University - Camden
B.A. English
University of Delaware

Tia McIntosh is a proud Coaching Director and Leader in Me Consultant and Coach for FranklinCovey's education division. In this role, she leads a team of coaches in the eastern United States. She also coaches schools throughout the state of Georgia and trains schools nationally. In addition to working to ensure the success of her team, she is focused on promoting leadership practices at both the adult and student levels to foster desired results in leadership, culture, and academics.

Before beginning her work with FranklinCovey four and a half years ago, Tia spent fifteen years serving as a teacher, academic coach, school administrator, and district central office administrator in high-needs urban schools. She has had the pleasure of working as a school leader at the elementary, middle, and high school levels.

In these roles, Tia has been committed to coaching staff in implementing best practices. She has effectively led school teams in obtaining improved student academic outcomes and enhanced school cultures. Facilitating staff development opportunities is one of her passions. Tia is dedicated to educational improvement efforts and has diligently served disenfranchised students and their families for over nineteen years.

Tia remains committed to community service and continues her work with non-profit organizations. She is currently serving as the Chairwoman of the board of a non-profit that serves marginalized women and children.

Tia holds a Master's degree in Public Administration and continues to pursue advanced degrees and executive coaching certifications. She currently resides in McDonough, GA with her spouse and three children.